Careers

The Euro Support Group is always looking for good men and women. Dedicated professionals who can help our customers to stay one step ahead of the game. Do you have a (poly)technical degree in chemistry, chemical technology, materials science, technical business administration, mechanical or electrical engineering? And would you like to join an international, motivated and inspiring team of catalyst and materials professionals and engineers? If that's you, we invite you to contact us today!

Working at Euro Support

The human factor is our most important resource. As a family company with short lines of communication, led by an ambitious and enthusiastic management, the work climate at Euro Support is outstanding. The company has a solid financial position and international presence, and offers its employees excellent primary and secondary benefits. What's more, Euro Support attaches importance to giving its people room for personal development within a dynamic team working environment.
